

CUT WITH A KNIFE

McKenzie in Attempting to Make an Arrest is Seriously Slashed.

Chamberlain, a Young Man, While Crazy With Drink, Does the Deed.

The Officer Breaks His Club Over the Boy's Head, But Does Not Break His Skull.

Officer McKenzie was cut and seriously wounded last night by Elmer Chamberlain, who in turn was seriously clubbed by the officer. The occurrence was an unfortunate one, as it casts a shadow upon the life of a highly respected young man. The circumstances as related were learned by an independent reporter. Young Chamberlain had been drinking rather heavily; in fact was crazy with liquor and wandered into the Merchant's hotel bar. He was refused a drink and went into the hotel office. Imagining that he had been grossly insulted by some one he drew a knife and threatened to kill anyone who approached him.

H. O'Brien, one of the proprietors, began talking to young Chamberlain, trying to induce him to go home, and had partly succeeded, the boy promising that he would go in a few minutes. While Mr. O'Brien and Chamberlain were talking, Officer McKenzie approached, and laying his hand upon Chamberlain's arm told him to come with him. Quick as a flash Chamberlain turned on his heel and struck at the officer's throat with his knife. The officer drew his club and gave Chamberlain a terrible blow over the head, the blow shattering the club to splinters. Chamberlain was knocked about ten feet and lay in a senseless heap.

Standards, who did not know that Chamberlain had used a knife, ran up and angrily inquired why he struck the boy. The policeman simply pointed to his chest, which was laid open from ear to chin, and the sight cooled the blood of the crowd. Officer Quentin made his appearance about this time and dragged Chamberlain to jail, a sight not very pleasing, which could be avoided if the boy had a patrol wagon. Officer McKenzie was taken to Dr. Kollogg's office and his wounds dressed. The point of the knife entered just below the left ear and came out just above the point of the chin. The wound bled profusely and it was some time before it could be staunch sufficiently to allow the doctor to sew it up. When the blood was stayed the doctor took seven stitches in the wound, that number being necessary to bring the lips of the wound together. Strips of adhesive plaster were then applied, the wound bandaged and the officer taken to his home. The doctor says if erysipelas does not set in the officer will be all right within two or three weeks.

Young Chamberlain was examined at the police station but beyond a swollen condition on the side of the head no other injury was discovered. He did not think the skull was fractured, but could not state positively. If the skull is not broken the club must have been a very light one, for the officer is a large, powerful man, and struck with all his force.

Chamberlain is an employee in the surveying department of the Northern Pacific and has heretofore borne a good reputation. He is a young man about 22 years of age and in appearance is a boy. He is of slight build, of pleasant features and very popular with all of his acquaintances. His friends offered bail for him last night but it was refused.

WHAT THE LAW IS.

Judge Blake Decides an Important Case in the Supreme Court.

The Supreme court yesterday decided a peculiar case—that of the county commissioners of Silver Bow county vs. Wm. H. Strumbaugh. The case is in brief as follows: In Silver Bow county, August 10, 1887, Charles Clayton shot and killed Z. T. Maddox. Clayton was tried for the homicide, convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary at Deer Lodge. After Clayton's conviction the commissioners of Silver Bow county learning that he had considerable property proceeded under a territorial statute to collect the costs of the case. The statute is in substance that in criminal cases, in the case of conviction, the costs shall be assessed against the defendant, and if he is unable to pay the court shall pay the same.

The commissioners learned that Clayton's property was in the hands of Wm. H. Strumbaugh and attached the same for the costs. The district court decided that the county had a right to attach the property and the Supreme court reversed the decision, Judge Blake giving the decision.

A New Directory.

We desire to inform the business men of Helena that we, R. L. Polk & Co., one of the largest publishing houses in existence, are canvassing for the next city directory of Helena. We will give you a city directory far superior and more complete than any directory ever published of the city—and one that will not be surpassed in excellence, accuracy and completeness. We are able to do this because of our unequalled facilities and long experience in the business. Labor and expense will not be considered in order to make the work all that a most exacting public could desire. Our local manager will open an office and locate permanently in Helena; but in a directory library for the free use of the public, and the Helena city directory will be distributed to all branch offices and bureaus of information throughout all the principal cities of the United States, thereby enabling people in all parts of the Union to have free access to the Helena directory, and a first-class directory is the best medium for advertising a city, as well as the business men thereof; hence, it would be to the interest of the people to support us. This and other Montana directories will be compiled and printed in Helena.

If you want to make your home beautiful buy some of those new pictures at The Bee Hive.

BOB WALKER'S EXPERIENCE.

He Relates An Incident of the Survey in the Milk River Country.

Robert Walker, who recently had charge of the government survey of the Indian reservations of the Milk River, relates the following experience of that trip which took three months time and 1,500 miles of territory were traversed. Bob says: "Nothing of any interest transpired until we reached the Fort Belknap agency, which is occupied by the Assinibone Indians. We had started to define the eastern boundary of the reservation, and during the day we had seen several Indians. At night we all retired to our tents and passed a night in peaceful slumber and happy dreams. It was the first time in the morning and my hair stood straight up as I saw a group of 250 Indians, all mounted and armed with shotguns or rifles, surrounding us. After I recovered my senses I woke the boys up, and as they saw the Indians they were as badly if not worse scared than I was. We couldn't run and we could not fight as there was only ten of us against 250. We gained composure, however, and nervously ate the breakfast prepared for us by the cook, always keeping one eye on the Indians. After breakfasting we started to work. I took my instrument to a point which I had staked out the night before, having fixed it due north and south by the guide of the North star. About the time I leveled the instrument in a straight direction, the big chief, White Bear, rode up to where I was, and dismounting tapped me on the shoulder. I thought my time had come. He drew from his shirt a plat of the reservation and by signs and talk which I was a long time understanding, gave me to understand that I was not laying off the correct line. He would point to the map and then look at me and shake his head, saying, "no good;" then pointing to a creek farther east he would say, "cheap good." He wanted me to run the boundary line in an easterly and northeasterly direction, taking in about 40,000 acres of excellent farming land and including a creek. I showed him by plat which was just like his and by signs told him I could only go according to instructions, and he said something about his treaty with the United States, which should include all the land up the creek. I said "no," however, and if I proceeded he shook his head, and in view of the situation I thought it would be policy not to do anything, until they left. They didn't leave, however, but spent nearly the whole day with us. We became quite good friends and I was considered the chief. Finally as a compromise White Bear suggested I should run a foot race with one of his men. He called me some Indian name for chief, and as I used to be a pretty fair sprinter in my schoolboy days, which are not very far away, I thought I could stand any of them. After quite a delay they brought out a strapping young Indian to race with. He was fully six feet four inches in his stocking feet, and I concluded I didn't stand a ghost of a show. The Indians are great gamblers, and every one of that party seemed to have money. We wagered about $40 on our side, and they promptly met us.

"The race was to be 100 yards and one of my men marked off the distance. There were no ladies around so we both stripped, and as I stepped up to the mark at I had on was a breech-cloth and socks. My opponent didn't wear socks. We finally got the word to go and the Indians were all excited. For about fifty yards the Indian had the lead by about four feet, but at that point I overhauled him and was going ahead a sure winner. But, unfortunately, just as I was within five feet of the winning line I stepped into a gopher hole and tumbled a complete somersault and slightly sprained my ankle. I lost the race, and there was great shouting among the natives, who thought we were pretty good fellows but didn't know how to run. I was glad they won the money, however, as they went home in the evening greatly pleased with their day's sport which included jumping and throwing the stone and other amusements. The next day we proceeded with our work unmolested."

REPORTORIAL NOTES.

Der Liebestrank, an operetta by Conrad will be produced at Harmonia hall to-night.

The session of the supreme court held yesterday was the last under the territorial regimen.

George Hall, the well-known railroad man, has purchased Pat Leo's Golden Spike saloon at the depot.

The total enrollment at the Helena Business College is nearly thirty. The short hand class numbers over thirty.

The alarm from box twenty-two last night was caused by an ash barrel near the new Merchants bank building catching fire. It was extinguished before the fire department arrived.

Dr. Wynne, oculist and aurist, of this city, leaves to-day for a six weeks' professional trip throughout the west. During his absence Mr. Henry A. Robinson, at Ganser's shoe store, will have charge of his property.

A pile of rubbish was discovered adrift in the rear of McFarland's stable on Clure street yesterday forenoon about 9 o'clock. It was extinguished with a few buckets of water. It was thought to be incendiary, but investigation disproved that theory.

O. F. Tyler & Co., the official photographers of the Montana and Montana Central railway are in the city and have taken some excellent views. They are artists at their business, and have taken some excellent photos of the INDEPENDENT'S illustration of J. K. Toole on a rooster's body.

Handsome window draperies at Fowles' Cash Store.

Notices Filed for a Recount.

The county republican committee yesterday filed with the county commissioners a notice for a recount in the First, Second, Eleventh and Twelfth precincts. The democrats, hearing of this, to show that they were not asleep, also filed notice for a recount in the Seventh, Ninth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth precincts, East Helena, Jay Gould and Dearborn canyon. What action the commissioners will take will be made known at their meetings Monday.

A large line of dolls from 50 cents upwards have just been received at The Bee Hive.

Great drive tools week in children's grey Scotch wool underwear only 25 cents, worth 50 and 75 cents, at Fowles' Cash Store.

Plush and leather photograph albums for $1.50 and upwards at The Bee Hive.

The rush for goods at W. G. Bailey's still continues. The public seems determined to take advantage of the closing out sale to buy holiday presents.

Made an Assignment.

Ike Boyer, of the L. X. L. Bazar, yesterday made an assignment to Charles Bank for the benefit of his creditors. All Helena creditors are preferred. It is more than likely that the creditors will all give an extension of time and that he will resume business at the old stand within a very few days. The liabilities are about $40,000 and the assets are said to exceed $50,000.

Full size decorated chamber set only $8.50 at The Bee Hive.

A fine line of plush dressing cases very cheap at The Bee Hive.
